NEW HOPE FOR THAW IN APPEAL

CONSUMERS N. H. Oct. 29.—Here and there the attorneys were bullish today when they learned that Governor Parker is to be heard with regard to Thaw's appeal.

Mrs. Thaw is in question, and that his appeal papers for Thaw should not be recognized.

A New York newspaper man has taken the same case to the Supreme Court of the United States on his appeal, present day declared to get Governor Parker's decision.

Indefinite Delay.

This action will delay the Thaw case, pending the Supreme Court's decision.

Thaw's lawyers today practically tossed away their last hope of opposing the extradition of the fugitive. They were judicially believing they had found a flaw in the New York court in which Thaw would make it.

The plan was thus stated:

The penal code of New York requiring that when a matter has once been considered by a Grand Jury, and action has been taken, that matter cannot be considered by any subsequent Grand Jury.

He filed an order to that effect has been issued by the judge presiding at the original Grand Jury's session.

No Order from Judge.

Judge Handerson, presiding over the Dutchess County Grand Jury proceedings when a "no bill" was voted in the Thaw case, and Judge Handerson has been ordered to consider consideration of the case in New York County.

This point is raised upon an appeal to the New York Supreme Court.

At an important meeting of Thaw's counsel today, it was decided that the Thaw case should be taken to New York County, N. Y. Thaw's case as an instance of immunity from immediate commitment to Matamoras.

It was noted that Thaw was with a group of attorneys in New York City, and that he would, in all probability, be taken to New York County, N. Y. Thaw's case as an instance of immunity from immediate commitment to Matamoras.

It was decided that Thaw should be taken to New York County, N. Y. Thaw's case as an instance of immunity from immediate commitment to Matamoras.

POISON JURY FREES WIDOW

Mrs. Jennie May Eaton—acquitted today by the death trial jury at Plymouth—walked from the court house a free woman and exclaimed:

"Oh, it is like coming into a new world. To think that I am free! I am free!"

Mrs. Eaton's first thought after the foreman of the jury had reported the verdict of "Not guilty" was of her mother and her two daughters—Dorothy and Anne.

"Oh, my children! my children!" Mrs. Eaton cried in the fulness of her heart, tears of joy filling her eyes. "Oh, my mother! my dear mother!"

DAWN OF NEW LIFE, CRIES WIDOW

Three or four moments after she stepped from the court house, she exclaimed:

"It's the dawn of a beautiful morning, especially beautiful for me, for it is a new era in my life. I know that I will never have the sorrows of the one now gone."

Then, to have, standing up from the bench, she declared each other in a long embrace.

The afternoon Mrs. Eaton's daughter, then she has even been seen in all her life, she declared each other in a long embrace.

Reunion at Assinippi Home.

At her home Mrs. Eaton was greeted by her white-haired mother, Mrs. Harrison. Later from Quincy came Mrs. Eaton's daughter, and the three family circle for the first reunion since the day she died.

Mrs. Eaton was arrested last March, accused of slaying her husband, Harry August Eaton.

She was held in prison for eight months, and then, after a long trial, she was acquitted.

Prison for Her Lawyers.

The news in the courtroom as the jury found her not guilty was the joy of the day.

CONGRESS WRANGLES OVER PRESENT TO JESSIE WILSON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Representative Gray of Indiana, created a sensation in the House today by denouncing his colleagues in that body for presenting to a friend, the purpose of which is to purchase a wedding present for Miss Jessie Wilson. Gray declared the members were getting "too familiar with the President's family" and suggested that the money be turned over to charity.

"I think this movement is in bad taste, dishonest and an unwarranted assumption by members of this House," and Gray said that he had form for us to interfere.

Gray further suggested that the House might better take official action in the matter by passing the following resolution congratulating Miss Wilson.

"Whereas, the marriage of the President's daughter, Miss Jessie Wilson, has been announced to be celebrated in the People's Menagerie, the White House, at an early date, therefore, be it

Sulzer Case Now in Federal Courts

Suit Filed to Test Legality of Impeachment.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The impeachment and ouster of William Sulzer from the Governorship of New York, was carried into the Federal courts today through the motion of an injunction suit.

The suit was filed in the United States District Court by W. H. Moore to test and possibly set aside the impeachment of the Governor. It is based on the assumption that the judges of the court of appeals and the State Senate had no right to impeach Sulzer for acts committed prior to his taking office.

The present Governor, Marling H. Glynn, officers of the State Government, judges of the court of appeals and all the State Senators are made defendants, as is Sulzer himself, to make the proceeding legal.

The information is asked to prevent Governor Glynn from performing the functions of his office.

FORENSIC FIRE FIGHT ON TODAY AT WELLESLEY

There is open war at Wellesley, and the Junior Misses and the Sophomore Misses are being pitted for arguments and spats. Tradition has been shattered and forensic burning is in vogue again.

It is an old college custom—the junior president or vice-president to burn the first page of last sophomore foreman or speech in the presence of twenty judges and the freshmen to catch them in the act.

After chapel today, the juniors in a body rushed from chapel to College Hall east and there to the entire college Miss Margaret Griffin, junior president, read the "challenge to the sophomores."

The juniors challenge the sophomores to forensic burning between 4:05 p. m. and 5:30 p. m. today.

The foreman will be burned by the president or vice-president—Miss Margaret Griffin.

It will be burned on the campus, but not in a safety house.

It will be burned by fire—not by acid.

No junior shall lay hands on a sophomore.

Automobiles, horses, ponies, mules, boats, trunks or express wagons, street cars, and anything else that is not a person shall not be used by either party.

The sophomores accepted the challenge and will answer and the battle will be on at 4:05 today.

MISS ANNE MORGAN, who turned the laugh on the customs officials, about to ship off the "allegretto" from her hat, by showing them that the plume was but that of a "barnyard fowl."

ANNE MORGAN'S AIGRETTE WAS BUT IMITATION

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Miss Anne Morgan, Miss Elizabeth Marbury and Miss Elsie Morgan, who were on the first trip for the famous "three bachelor maids of New York" on the "maisonette," as Miss Morgan put it. "But think," Miss Morgan said, "of having more confidence in me."

"I have crossed fifty-eight times, and only I cannot count this as a crossing, for we did not realize we were on the Atlantic," Miss Marbury interjected. "We had three very stormy days, but we did not realize it any more than if we had been looking out the window at home."

Miss Morgan was almost held up by the customs men. She wore a jaunty hat trimmed with what they took for a fancy aigrette, but which, she explained, was nothing but a barnyard fowl—a hen. The girls were the wonderful reason why Miss Morgan should not be held up.

"We all had a wonderful summer," said Miss Morgan. "My greatest thrill this summer was watching from Venetia, Mr. Morgan's aerial 'hot-air balloon.' It was over where we lived, and one day he performed the feat six times."

AVOID CATARRH

Breathe Hyomel—It Medicates the Air You Breathe and Instantly Relieves.

Who continues to suffer from catarrh, stopped-up head, husky voice and other troubles of the breathing organs when your throat is wet, use Hyomel with a guarantee to return the purchase money if it is not satisfactory.

Hyomel is a pleasant, harmless and antiseptic medication which you breathe a few times daily through a small inhaler. It effectively and promptly cures colds, catarrh of the nose, throat, and lungs, and the formation of crusts in the nose or throat.

A complete Hyomel outfit, consisting of inhaler and a bottle of Hyomel, costs $1.00, and extra bottles of Hyomel are only 50 cents.

Always use Hyomel for bronchitis, cold in the head, husky voice, croup of infants and any inflammation of the throat or breathing organs.

A special sale that doesn't have a good reason back of it is a delusion and a snare.

"Month End Clean Up Sale"

ONE DAY each month we set apart for one grand general disposal sale throughout the entire establishment, cleaning up all the odd lots, broken sizes, surplus stocks, etc., that are bound to be left over at the end of every four weeks in this busy house.

We make the prices so low on these lots that they MUST sell in one day. Hundreds of people make a habit of getting here before the store opens in order to secure these bargains at sacrifice prices.

BOST

The AMERICAN Urges Its Readers to Vote for Walsh for Governor

There comes a time in the course of a political campaign when a newspaper, with more than 400,000 readers, a newspaper which has a recognized policy, must choose its side.

This unusual and confusing campaign has reached such a juncture. The AMERICAN believes that upon all the facts which bear on the present political situation Mr. Walsh ought to receive our vote.

In this remarkable contest the policies for which the AMERICAN has striven find an echo more or less distinct in the spirit and policies of three of the candidates for Governor. Governor Foss, the Independent candidate; Lieutenant-Governor Walsh, the Democratic candidate, and Mr. Charles S. Bird, the Progressive candidate, all advocate most of the things which the AMERICAN has urged upon the people of this Commonwealth during the last seven years. There was NOT ENOUGH DIFFERENCE between the policies of these three men to enable us to decide between the candidates upon the difference alone between their platforms. The better man might redeem the poorer platform. Therefore, we have waited to see how their sincerity would bear the test of the canvass.

The body of the Progressive party is composed of earnest, intelligent men. Mr. Charles S. Bird, their candidate, has the respect of all elements including his opponents and the Boston AMERICAN. The spirit of the Progressive movement is fine. Its general policies are excellent. It has set a wonderful example to the other great parties in the State and to its own national organization by its ability to raise a campaign fund from disinterested sources.

BUT it has not grappled with the real issue in this campaign. It flutters with the railroad question—THE ONE QUESTION THAT REQUIRES COURAGE.

The best it can offer concerning our oppressive railroad monopoly is a referendum in ONE YEAR FROM THE NEXT ELECTION.

The AMERICAN agrees with the Progressives that a great fundamental question of public policy like that of competition or monopoly in our transportation business ought to be settled by the people themselves, or a referendum. But why defer it?

In the meantime, Mr. Bird is innocently echoing the cry of the railroad men themselves, "Give Mr. Elliott a chance." A chance to do what? He has promised nothing definite and railroad promises are now a dime a dozen in the market. Whatever Mr. Elliott has DONE is exactly what Mr. Bird would have done under the same circumstances. He serves the same masters Mr. Mellen served: the Morgan-Rockefeller group; they brought him from the same railroad from whence they brought Mr. Mellen. His first official act was to endorse the sixty-seven million-dollar bond issue, INCLUDING THE MORGAN COMMISSION BAKKOFF. His next official act was to appear before the Interstate Commerce Commission in behalf of the demand for higher rates on the Boston & Maine Railroad, and while there attending to ANOTHER RAILROAD'S business. ANOTHER WRECK OCCURRED ON THE NEW HAVEN.

Until we have reason to believe that giving Mr. Elliott a chance means giving him a chance to change the monopolistic policy of the railroad, Mr. Bird is only aiding and abetting this monopoly.

To elect Mr. Bird when he is wrong on such a great essential would be giving the Progressive party a wrong start and would do the State no good.

The platform of Governor Foss is a splendid platform, and his record in office is a splendid record. He made one or two bad appointments, but he had a great many to make and difficult conditions under which to make them, and the wonder is that he did so well. But on the great questions of public policy the Governor's political judgment was unerring, and his loyalty to his former platforms was above reproach.

Yet through a series of strategic blunders under bad advice, he has manoeuvred himself, or has been manoeuvred by his bad advisers, into a hopeless position in this contest.

Therefore his declaration in favor of the separation of the Boston & Maine Railroad and the street railways from the control of the New Haven transportation monopoly; his ambitious plan to bring the Canadian trunk lines to Boston; his plan to rescue what he calls "the waste products of society," by beneficent prison reform, are all more or less academic in the mouth of a man who has no prospect of carrying out these policies in his own person.

The Governor's record assures us of his loyalty to these policies, and they are the great issues of the hour. If no one else advocated these principles, whose sincerity and efficiency could be trusted, and whose prospects of success were no greater, then those who believe in them would have to support the Governor, taking their chance on his election.

But the platform of Mr. Walsh declares also for these policies. His prospect of election is incomparably greater than that of Governor Foss under the heavy handicap which the Governor has unfortunately assumed.

The AMERICAN believes that Lieutenant-Governor Walsh is an honest and a sincere man. This much is conceded to him by Governor Foss himself. But he has proved it without the testimony of his opponent. The platform that was adopted by the Democratic convention, and which will be his program of policies if elected, is a platform which he himself conceived, wrote, promulgated before he was nominated, presented to the Democratic convention personally, and solemnly swore allegiance to before the whole convention.

He has taken it up item by item during the entire course of this campaign, expounded it, and defended it in every section of the State without hiding any part of it anywhere. The very point on which his Progressive opponents have chosen to attack his sincerity exhibits him in a most favorable light. Persistently throughout this contest the Progressives have criticised his attitude toward those recreant Democrats who betrayed their party platform in the last Legislature by turning over the trolleys of western Massachusetts to the tender mercies of the New Haven Railroad.

On the very next day, when in the western part of the State he heard that this extraordinary party treason had been perpetrated, he publicly declared that: "IF THESE DEMOCRATS HAVE VIOLATED THEIR PARTY PLATFORM THEY OUGHT TO BE PUNISHED."

The next week, on the 17th of June, at the celebration in Charlestown, speaking from the same platform with Ex-President Roosevelt, Mr. Walsh declared that men who violated their party principles are traitors to their party.

Again, when before his nomination for Governor he published his views upon the pressing questions, he declared that the violation of the obligation of the party platform was the "HIGHEST FORM OF POLITICAL TREASON," and that the bill giving the New Haven the western street railways should be repealed by the next Legislature. He then suggested the enactment of a law which deprived a candidate of the use of the party designation who did not subscribe in advance to his party platform. He made this a plank in the platform adopted by the last Democratic convention. He is explaining this plank to the people of this State and stands pledged to make it a part of his legislative program if elected. Concerning this, what more could he say or do? What more could Mr. Bird himself say or do?

The observing citizen must have noticed that Mr. Walsh, when in a particular section of the State, has not emphasized those planks of the platform most pleasing to that section, and kept in the background those planks not so pleasing. This is a custom of political campaigning.

But Mr. Walsh, probably feeling the weight of those fifty wreathed

Democrats upon his shoulders, took that plank in his platform, which declared in favor of the repeal of the act giving the western trolleys to the New Haven, into those very hill towns which wanted to put their heads into the lion's mouth. There he espoused it and defended it. This he did in the very presence of some of the Democratic Representatives who had voted for this vicious bill.

As a member of the Committee on Resolutions in the last National Democratic Convention, and as a member of the sub-committee that drew up the platform upon which President Wilson was elected, Mr. Walsh advocated the most progressive policies, and he introduced a plank in favor of the Initiative and Referendum in our national legislation.

He has been criticised for his vote in favor of the Boston & Albany lease to the New York Central, when a member of the Legislature in 1900. This was a bad vote. No one knows it today better than Mr. Walsh himself. But this was the first of the disastrous surrenders of our independent New England railroad systems to New York control.

They came with dazzling promises. They spread out high and gratifying prospects before us. They assured our businessmen that the Boston & Albany would have the great western connections of the New York Central. They convinced our business organizations. The Boston Chamber of Commerce and the other semi-public groups of businessmen defended the lease, just as they would now oppose it.

Governor Foss and Mr. Bird, both within six years, have defended the surrender of the Boston & Maine Railroad to the New Haven control. This, too, was after our disastrous experience with the New York control of the Boston & Albany, and with the unreliable character of railroad promises. Mr. Bird is not even yet prepared to say what he would do concerning the great question if elected.

Moreover, Mr. Walsh's vote on the Boston & Albany lease was more than a decade ago. At that time President Roosevelt was a reactionary, and President Wilson was denouncing the leading member of his Cabinet and many of the policies which he has since advocated. In half that time Governor Foss has entirely changed his views on the railroad question. Events have moved rapidly in this country during the last ten years. We have discovered many evils in our body politic which were unknown to us then, many injurious practices which seemed harmless then. If we were to condemn men to be without hope of expiating their fault for views held ten years ago, we should have few leaders for our progressive cause today.

The AMERICAN believes that Mr. Walsh has demonstrated his sincerity by the things he has advocated and by the honest, uncompromising way he has advocated them.

Is he efficient? Has he the ability, the experience and the character to promote his policies if he is entrusted by the people with the chief magistracy?

We believe that he has a full measure of all these qualities. He has been a successful man in his profession. His law practice is one of the largest in the central part of the State. He has had experience in the Legislature. He has been Lieutenant-Governor. He has been for three years high in the councils of his party during the period when it was the dominant party. His steady, calm and dignified conduct during this campaign, avoiding personal encounters, though he had provocation, being unmoved by the interference of some of the hotheads of his party, who were spoiling for a fight—this is self-restraint which gives evidence of judgment and character. Where you have judgment and character, ability and experience, meeting in one man, you have an efficient man.

Because Mr. Walsh IS EFFICIENT, because he has the issues, because he CAN BE ENTRUSTED with the issues, because he has a chance to win, the AMERICAN believes that he ought to receive the votes of reflecting citizens who want to place their votes where they will do the most good.

Who Is Responsible? Not the Reformer

The question discussed in this article, while written by Dr. Aked particularly for San Francisco, is of a nature which affects all cities.

THE first attempt to convict the party party and the police Commission of San Francisco of pitiful inhumanity has failed. It was inevitable that such an attempt should be made. Others will follow from time to time. But this has brought down the

A big sensation was attempted by the professed defenders of vice. Two girls were said to have tried to commit suicide, driven to despair because they could find no work, the result of the decision of the police to separate drinking from dancing on the Barbary Coast. Stage girls have, of course, been

"bounced to death"; and decent men and women who decline to have San Francisco made infamous in order that a few panders, procurers and brothel keepers may get rich were guilty of bounding them to death. The girls have given an entirely different account of their motives. A love affair, lies behind one attempted suicide. Both refused aid from social workers who offered them homes and legitimate employment. One is quoted as saying: "I don't need any help. I have plenty of money and diamonds, and can go back to the Barbary Coast tonight. I have no children nor others dependent on me, and with what I have saved while on the Coast can get along very nicely." So much for the first case. There has been little "bouncing" here.

But we shall hear more of this sort of thing. Even the average decent citizen has an undefined feeling that in some way or other the men and women who have demanded the suppression of an outstanding nuisance are under obligation to safeguard the future of women of evil life no longer permitted to traffic in their own shame. Many a man of the world who prides himself upon taking "practical view of things, who would feel insulted if told that his thinking is singularly modified, seems to imagine that he has propounded a question which is a real poser, and one which effectively blocks civic reform when he asks: "What is to become of these girls if you enforce the law?" The years will, to be sure, answer the question. What is to become of "these women"? Not many will go into homes. Not many will reform. Many will go to other cities. Other cities will, in due time, enforce the law. One by one the women will drop out of the ranks as they do now. Everything will be accomplished if we succeed in preventing others from taking their places. Stop manufacturing a fresh supply—and the problem will solve itself. Meanwhile it may be objected that the community, having convinced at the illegal pursuits of these women, and having now decided on a different policy, has involved itself in some measure of moral responsibility for their future. Then, let it be repeated, it is the responsibility of the community and not of individuals in the community who have advocated civic decency. The persons who should lead in this work are the men whose lives have made it necessary.
